Story Of Refugees Seeking Haven In U. S. Billed At Ohio

Humphrey Bogart, Ingrid Bergman, Claude Rains And Peter Lorre Appear In "Casablanca" Friday

"Casablanca," which deals with refugees from wartorn Europe and their attempts to secure exit visas to the Americas, commences Friday at the Ohio theatre. This action packed production features Humphrey Bogart, Ingrid Bergman, Claude Rains, Conrad Veidt, Peter Lorre and a host of other favorites, "Arabian Nights" will end Thursday.

A beautiful girl, defying violence and terror, and a daring Yank, flying and fighting for victory, provide an exciting romantic adventure story against a flaming background of war in "China Girl," which arrives at the Quilna theatre Friday night. Gene Tierney, George Montgomery and Lynn Bari are featured. Ending Friday afternoon will be "Flight Lieutenant" and "Laugh Your Blues Away."

Still continuing to attract patrons to the Sigma is "Hitler's Children," based on the book written by Gregor Ziemer. You'll see children being tortured, women being whipped and the ways the leaders of Germany carry out their work. "Northwest Rangers" also is showing.

"Highways By Night," State hit, concerns a wealthy young business man who accidentally intrudes on a gangland murder. He finds himself hunted by the police on one hand and marked for death by crooks on the other. Pat O'Brien, George Murphy and Jane Wyatt are in the co-feature, "The Navy Comes Thru."

Bob Steele, Tom Tyler and Jimmie Dodd break up a gang of outlaws in "Thundering Trails," now showing at the Lyric. Action starts when a man is killed in a hold-up. Completing the Lyric bill is "Castle in the Desert."

Opening Thursday at the Majestic are "The Boogie Man Will Get You," and "A Haunting We Will Go."

OHIO

La Medina, the mysterious vice-infested section of Casablanca, will soon be as familiar to American picture audiences as the Casba, the criminal quarter of Algiers, made famous in the picture, "Algiers."

For La Medina figures importantly in "Casablanca," the new film, starring Humphrey Bogart, Ingrid Bergman and Paul Henreid, which opens at the Ohio theatre on Friday. That section was recreated on the screen under the technical supervision of Robert Eisner, French army officer, who escaped the Nazi claw soon after the fall of France, where he remained several months before he obtained a passport to Lisbon and thence to the United States.

La Medina, located in the northwest section of Casablanca, Morocco, is enclosed by a high wall, with its back to the Atlantic. It is the old Moorish part of the city and later became the refuge for underground leaders, political fugitives and escaped French, Czech and Polish army officers.

It is with such refugees that the plot of "Casablanca" concerns itself. The action of the story takes place in Casablanca, with a flashback to Paris just prior to the German occupation, which tells of the love between Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman. Paul Henreid is cast as a prominent leader of the underground.

A featured supporting cast is headed by Claude Rains, Conrad Veidt, Sydney Greenstreet and Peter Lorre.

SIGMA

Stark realism, vivid drama and exciting romance are blended in the new David L. Loew - Albert Lewin production of the famous Somerset Maugham novel, "The Moon and Sixpence," which will have its premiere showing at the Sigma theatre on Saturday. The cast of this film, which records the adventures and romances of a brooding genius who differed from other men, includes George Sanders, Herbert Marshall, Doris Dudley, Elena Verdugo, Albert Basserman, Eric Blore, Robert Grieg and Steve Geray.

"The Moon and Sixpence" tells an unusual story about an unusual man, a wealthy banker who abandoned his family and society in order to become an artist. Charles Strickland, played by George Sanders, is the hero of the film, and when he defies the world into which he was born, his travels and adventures resolve into a kaleidoscope of color and movement and sharp contrasts.

He goes from London's fashionable West End to a shabby Parisian garret, to raucous waterfront dives in Marseilles, and on to the South Seas, storied haven of enchantment for all harried souls seeking escape. An entire Tahitian village was constructed on a sound stage for this South Sea setting, and over 200 Polynesians, male and female, were employed as extras. The grass houses were built of genuine dried pandanus leaves and bamboo poles. And the tiny village church was furnished with a thin-toned reed organ.

Unusual native dancing is featured in the Tahitian scenes of "The Moon and Sixpence," with Devi Dja and her native Javanese dancers performing to primitive rhythms. According to Devi Dja, Javanese dancing numbers tell a story and most of the time it is romantic stuff about boy-meets-girl. She also pointed out that modern boogie-woogie is an absolute derivative of tribal dancing that is centuries old and flourished in places where no white man ever penetrated.

QUILNA

A beautiful girl, defying violence and terror, and a daring Yank, flying and fighting for victory, provide an exciting romantic adventure story against a flaming background of war in "China Girl," which arrives at the Quilna theatre Friday night.

Gene Tierney and George Montgomery, teamed for the first time, are co-starred with Lynn Bari. 115 pounds of curves, crookedness and kisses caught in the battle-scarred East. Victor McLaglen, who tops the featured cast has the rugged type of role that made his name synonymous with hot and heavy action. The burly veteran appears as a two-fisted soldier-of-fortune who peddles his loyalty to the highest bidder.

Opening with a thrilling escape from a Jap prison by Montgomery, an American newsreel cameraman, and McLaglen, the film takes in territory as newsworthy as tomorrow's headlines. Montgomery lams it to Burma, with the Japs hot on his trail because he refused to photograph the Burma road for them. Here George meets Gene Tierney, a patriotic Chinese girl, and falls in love.

The exciting climactic sequences are said to have some of the most realistic bombing scenes ever filmed.

Also featured in the film are Alan Baxter, Sig Rumann, Myron McCormick and Bobby Blake.

LYRIC

Hollywood's cowboy triumvirate, the Three Mesquiteers, again proved their boxoffice appeal at the Lyric theatre, where "Thundering Trails," their latest western film is showing.

The theory that three cowboys are three times as good as one cowboy is effectively proven in "Thundering Trails," which local fans applauded enthusiastically. Tom Tyler, Bob Steele and Jimmie Dodd, making up the trio, each presents a different and contrasting personality facet. Tyler is the dashing, romantic member of the team; Steele is serious and stalwart; Dodd places emphasis on easy-going comedy.

The background of "Thundering Trails" places them in the Texas of pioneer days. As members of the Texas Rangers, they resent the red tape tactics of the authorities, who procrastinate giving them sufficient men and weapons to function efficiently.

When Stony Brooke's father is murdered in cold blood, he and the other two Mesquiteers, plus his brother Johnny, vow vengeance on the slayer. However, their vengeance takes shape in dramatically opposite ways. The Mesquiteers remain true to the Rangers are disbanded by unscrupulous politicians, while Johnny chooses to align himself with the politicians, becoming head of their puppet County Police organization.

Thus the Three Mesquiteers are pitted against Stony's brother, until, in a dramatic climax, Johnny Brook discovers the real truth about the men with whom he is identified, and joins in with the Mesquiteers before it is too late to help them round up and subdue the heavies.

Comedian Frank McHugh To Drop In On Crosby Thursday

Spanish American Countries To Be Honored On "Music Of The New World" Broadcast

Comedian Frank McHugh will drop in for the doings in the Music hall Thursday at 9 p. m. over WEAF. In honor of President Roosevelt's birthday, Bing Crosby, the hall genial emcee, will sing "Anchors Aweigh," one of the Chief Executives favorite songs. Also, there will be a special plea for listeners to join in the March of Dimes to help the fight against infantile paralysis.

No less spectacular than our own revolution was the struggle for independence carried on by our neighbors to the south in the first decades of the nineteenth century. Under such leaders as Bolivar, San Martin, Morelos and Iturbide, the Spanish-American colonies revolted and won their freedom. Patriotic songs of this era are highlighted by "Music of the New World" Thursday, WEAF, 11:30, in a program titled "Las Independencias" (1800 to 1825).

Like a country sky on a summer night the "Stage Door Canteen" program over WABC Thursday, at 9:30 p. m. will be studded with stars. Included are Anita Louise, film beauty, who'll be heard in a dramatic sketch; Sophie Tucker, "Last of the Red Hot Mamas," with her inimitable singing which has endeared her internationally; Barry Wood, the baritone sensation, and George Jessel, the comedian, who will make one of his popular 'phone calls to Mama Jessel.

Monty Woolley, the film's Pied Piper and the stage's "Man Who Came to Dinner" will be the guest of zany comedians Abbott and Costello during their first of four broadcasts from the east Thursday, WEAF, 10 p. m.

Frank "Tall-Story" Morgan, reaching for the clouds in an effort to protect the loftiest branches of the famed Morgan family tree from John Conte's icy blasts of ridicule, topples earthward in another fun-fest Thursday, WEAF, 8 p. m. Then Baby Snooks (Fanny Brice), momentarily repenting recent acts which drove "Daddy" Hanley Stafford almost to distraction, resumes a campaign of impish trickery that catches her long-suffering parent off-guard and necessitates a shift to old-fashioned punitive methods.

Bob Burns' "Arkansas Traveler" broadcast Thursday on WEAF at 7:30 p. m., will be staged before 500 loyal Arkansans who will be in the studio that evening for their annual reunion at which Burns, one of the state's favorite sons, will be guest of honor.

A lesson on how to be popular, paid for out of his very own pocket, doesn't advance Henry Aldrich's acceptance in the living room when his sister is having a date. Hank discovers in "The Aldrich Family," over WEAF Thursday at 8:30 p. m.

Opinions of a leading business executive and two economists will be presented in discussion of the topic: "Can Good Living Standards Be Assured Americans After the War?" on "America's Town Meeting of the Air," Thursday at 8:30 p. m. over WJZ.
